

I am apalled at the proposal to allow media companies to own both television stations and newspapers in the same market. So many newspapers have been closed and combined that few cities in the US currently have competing newspapers. Allowing newspapers and television stations to combine will only mean fewer voices in an already too quiet world. We need more voices and a wider range of publically expressed opinions in times of crisis as well as times of quiet.